Thursday, January 5, 2013 I have posted a previous post about the nativity scene that I made. Since then I have been asked if I have any blog post of the Christmas season. I didn't because I made the last set at the beginning of the summer and I didn't feel that it was right to make more until Christmas. Well this year it's time to share some Christmas posts that I have made, I'll be sharing photos, videos, and thoughts. This Christmas I decided to get a theme for our Christmas celebrations. I chose "Christmas Around the World" and we started decorating our home for Christmas. I decided to go with Red, White and Green (there are many variations of this theme) but I had trouble choosing the elements I wanted to use, if I should make a red/green/white theme or a red/white/green theme. Red seems to be the go-to color this year. I had originally wanted a Mickey Mouse theme. My husband told me I was crazy. Ok, so I took a deep breath and rethought the theme. Since we have red in our home I chose to go with a red/white/green theme, I used light blue for the accents in the room. My husband was the 3rd wheel. He was the receiver for all my Christmas photos and videos. He usually can be seen in the background of my videos and photos while I put the lights on and set up the props. Below is a post with my son playing with his Lego's. He has been a little on the negative side lately, he does this when he is getting upset or mad. He never does this if he is happy and excited. So I decided to take the Lego's outside where there is no danger of him injuring
