I.Shopping 101 Many of us have said to ourselves “I wish I knew what makes one piece of furniture or appliance more desirable than another.” Thanks to Jennifer Q. Whittaker, author of the latest book on the topic, The Complete Idiot’s Guide to Buying a Luxury Item, we don’t have to imagine any longer. Her new book reveals the all-important aspects that make a product desirable, such as style, design, cost, and features. “People buy what they perceive as the most beautiful,” Jennifer states. “How do they get that idea? It’s simple, they feel it in their hearts. When they purchase an item, they’re searching for the ideal solution to their problems.” If you’re in the market for something, Jennifer suggests the following to find out whether it’s right for you: Is it the right style and design for your home? Is it the right size for your space? Does it have enough of the right features? Is it a lot or a little on the costly side? Does it look and feel great? How do you know if the price is fair? If you want to buy something that is a quality product, but you don’t want to be overpaying, Jennifer offers the following tips: Not all brands are created equal. Know the name of the brand you’re buying. Have a firm idea of what you’re looking for and its price range. Seek an objective third party opinion, such as a trusted furniture shop or your partner in the home-buying process. If you’re considering a purchase, it’s essential to find out all the facts and research as much as possible. The cost of the item is only a part of the equation. Does it meet your needs and can
