I need to put "no items have been added yet!" and make it red. A: One way to do this is to create a rule that catches the exceptions to what you want to do: Put the following into your cell: =IF( A1:A1000"No items have been added yet!", F1:F1000=0 ) If the cell below the one you just entered has some string, then any formula in that cell and below will not be calculated. For example, "no items have been added yet!" >F2:F "f***" >F4:F If you don't want to use a constant for the error message, you could change the formula to use an IF statement: =IF( A1:A1000"No items have been added yet!", F1:F1000=0, "No items have been added yet!", ) You can use this to catch exceptions on cells that include the "no items have been added yet!" string. For example, you might have a warning or error message to show on a cell that has no items in it. You could do something like this: =IF( A1:A1000"No items have been added yet!", F1:F1000=0, A1:A1000="No items have been added yet!" ) This way, you won't have to add any formulas to catch the exceptions, just put the formula into the cell and it will do it for you.
