Q: How can I prevent a double call to.net Remoting I have a server process which returns multiple data objects to clients, a typical response for each object is as follows: Response 1 Server_Object 1 Server_Object 2 Response 2 Server_Object 3 Server_Object 4 As it stands, the client which receives the first response must receive the second response as well in order to receive a fully populated set of data objects. I have looked at using the Transactional Objects (Taos) feature of Remoting, but I do not know if this is the best way to achieve this. Currently, the Remoting server is being invoked 4bc0debe42
