KeyMacro's online macro recorder is just for recording the macro keys you need to memorize. For more complex tasks, the Setup and Testing mode can be used. In this mode, you can record the steps you need to complete for a particular task. Then, you can use KeyMacro's Editor to edit your macro. - Keyboard shortcuts. This mode is just for key remapping. It's useful if you have used the same keyboard shortcut many times in your web browser or in other software. KeyMacro is different from other tools that only record the key presses in order to quickly trigger the same operation. That's why KeyMacro lets you record the steps that you need to complete a task. You can also record key sequences that are not the normal keyboard shortcuts. KeyMacro allows you to record combinations of keystrokes, mouse clicks and more. KeyMacro's online macro recorder is a simple tool for quickly creating new macros. However, if you want to create a complex macro, it's better to use KeyMacro's Setup and Testing mode. KeyMacro's Setup and Testing mode gives you the flexibility to record the steps you need to complete for a particular task. KeyMacro's Editor lets you edit the macro in real-time. You can easily change the recorded sequence, define the macro shortcut, and edit the buttons. KeyMacro is very easy to use. It just shows a simple windows form that contains the options, the recorded macro, the macro description and a button that allows you to start or stop the macro. The online macro recorder lets you record a macro that automatically runs after a delay and lets you define the delay between each step. KeyMacro's online macro recorder only captures keystrokes and not mouse clicks. If you record a mouse click, the macro recorder will assume that it was a click on an object. In this case, you have to make sure that the object you're clicking on actually exists in the page you're recording. For this reason, we strongly recommend using 77a5ca646e
