- Open a selected file in a new window / tab - Mouse click or Enter key press. - Tabs support - Ctrl+M (or ALT+Z) to close windows - Configuration file (.ini) for advanced users - When using 'open in new tab' or 'open in new window' there's also an option to open the path where the files are stored This plugin is free to use and distributed under the GNU General Public License version 3. ** Features ** - Small and effective - No system requirements - No root access is needed - Uses a small amount of memory - Portable - Autoconfiguration (config.ini) - Ability to change key bindings - Should be pretty easy to modify to work with your other plugins - Smarts (can open multiple files in multiple tabs, remember previous opened files, etc) - Fast (never stalls or notifies if it can't find a file) - Doesn't require npp to be installed (useful if you don't want it to open the file automatically) - It's free. Drop a line below if you are interested in helping with translations or have any ideas for new features! A: Notepad++ I hope. Another Notepad++ version. A: OpenFinder is a small and efficient file explorer designed specifically for Notepad++. Much like Notepad++'s own file explorer, you can open, rename, move, copy and delete a file right from the Notepad++ text editor. OpenFinder is a Notepad++ plugin that allows you to launch an external file explorer from inside Notepad++ right from the main menu. This allows you to move or open a file without needing to "SaveAs...", or switch back and forth between editors. OpenFinder launches a file explorer from the menu. To use OpenFinder, simply select OpenFinder from the File menu, then navigate to the location of the file you want to open. Like a conventional file explorer, OpenFinder allows you to browse, open, and view a whole directory structure as well as the files and folders inside. You can also drag and drop files into OpenFinder, as well as unzipping files and creating/moving/copying the contents. The main features

What's New in the QuickOpen?

1. QuickOpen was developed as a quick and small Notepad++ plugin that allows you to select the whole path of a file and open it automatically. 2. Like the famous PSPad's "open selected file" option, you can press ALT + O, or use the button in the toolbar to do that. 3. You can press ALT + L to get back to Notepad++'s "find" dialog when you are done. 4. You can toggle full-screen (F11) or normal view (F11) at any time by pressing F11. 5. The installation file has been compressed with PPSCompressor, so you have to decompress that file first with WinRAR. You can extract the file to anywhere. Testimonials: All I can say is that in the past, I used to use QuickOpen just a few times a week, maybe 15 files per week. After I got used to it, I now use it almost every day. There have been two main reasons that I use it every day: 1) Because I am lazy. Just open the file and away you go 2) CMD + O is not what it used to be, and I hate to use the mouse. QuickOpen also works for CSV files, XML files, and any other file format that can be opened with Notepad++. Thank you! You can download QuickOpen here: I hope this will help you, and I hope I can use it too. :) Aquaporin-2 Deficiency Mitigates Renal Ischemia-Reperfusion Injury by Preserving Antioxidant Defense and Mitigation of Inflammation. deficiency on renal ischemia-reperfusion (I/R) injury has not been defined. In this study, we investigated the effect of AQP2 deficiency on renal I/R-induced injury and the underlying mechanisms. Renal I/R injury was induced by clamping the left renal artery for 45 min and followed by reperfusion for 12 h. AQP2 knockout and AQP2 heterozygous mice were used as the experimental and control groups, respectively. AQP2 immunofluorescence st
