A microcomputer in a portable terminal such as a cellular phone with a built-in camera has a function of capturing image data of an object included in an image of the captured image or displaying the image on a display device included in the portable terminal. In recent years, it is also increasingly popular to use a portable terminal with a touch panel or a touch pad as an input device by which a user operates the portable terminal. When the user input an instruction to capture the image or to display the captured image, he/she may directly operate a touch pad or a touch panel on the portable terminal. Alternatively, the user may operate
