Adobe Photoshop is a software used to create or edit high-resolution images and video, and various other media types. It is the flagship product of Adobe. Photoshop is commonly used in commercial, editorial, and industrial photography.

Its tools include not only the most commonly used Photoshop functions, but also Adobe Camera Raw, Adobe Fireworks, and other Adobe Creative Cloud applications. Photoshop is also available on Microsoft Windows and macOS, as well as on mobile devices, Sony PlayStation consoles, Raspberry Pi, and other platforms. Adobe Photoshop was originally created for Macintosh personal computers in 1990 by Charles Geschke and Ivan Arnold. It was originally created as a set of tools known as Macromedia Freehand, to make vector-based drawings, after the company Pixar, who developed the ImageReady software used for editing photographs, had purchased the company and placed Geschke and Arnold on the Macromedia team. Macromedia Freehand was released in 1991, creating the first use of the term "Photoshop". Freehand was a fundamental step forward in computer-based image editing, allowing users to easily create high-quality photographs and graphics with a variety of effects and tools. Freehand, along with Macromedia's suite of products for media creation, such as After Effects and Director, all operated on an early version of the Mac OS called Classic Mac OS. At its inception, Macromedia Freehand was created to allow people to edit photographs on desktop computers. The change from Pixar's previous ImageReady product to Freehand, and the corresponding switch from Mac OS 9 to Mac OS X, allowed Freehand to be redesigned to run on the PowerPC processor and released later as an operating system by its own name, Photoshop. The success of Photoshop was due to its high level of image editing features and ease of use, and it quickly became the most popular graphics program on the Mac. The product was released to the public in January 1998. In 1999, Adobe bought Macromedia for US$6.2 billion, retaining the name of the company as Adobe Macromedia. Adobe's acquisition of Macromedia brought Photoshop into the Adobe family of products, and was to be the major product of Adobe's acquisition of Macromedia. In 2001, the transition from Classic Mac OS to the Cocoa framework took place, and the Freehand suite was succeeded by Photoshop. However, Freehand and the user interface remained in use for the remainder of its product cycle 05a79cecff

Getty Images The Jets' defensive tackle position is a talented bunch. The problem is that they can't seem to keep it together. Sione Pouha, who has not played in any games this season, reportedly signed a one-year deal in Miami. The Jets reportedly have interest in Pouha as a possibility for a D-tackle role. The Jets traded away Muhammad Wilkerson in February, and seem to have no interest in re-signing Rob Thomas. It's possible that no one in the Jets front office wants Pouha, who hasn't played a game this season due to a leg injury. Perhaps the Dolphins will give Pouha an opportunity to play after his injury issues. Or maybe the Jets will find another team that will give Pouha a shot to get healthy and prove that he can still play, given his talent and effort. Pouha does not have the baggage that Wilkerson has, and he has the chance to play three downs in a new defensive scheme. Pouha showed promise as a rookie, and he'll have a chance to get back on the field this season. Unfortunately, it's tough to know whether the Jets will have an opportunity to watch Pouha play this season.

Log In CropCamp Australia a hit! 'Just' 2,000 people have attended CropCamp Australia on two occasions. This, in the former antechamber of the House of Representatives and the latter in the tent of the Senate. For the first time ever, attendees were invited to use one of our 80 high-powered Apple iPads to generate assessments of a number of political myths, and agree on one of two verdicts. Here's one: The NBN is a system that delivers reliable, fair and affordable internet to every Australian home and business. And another: The Federal Government supports sustainable agriculture and supports farmers when they need it. And, of course, others. Each of the 40 speakers had three minutes to deliver his or her own presentation. I was especially pleased to see attendance at the Senate event. As even Government MPs, including the former chair of the joint standing committee on the national broadband network are publicly questioning the Government's NBN policy, both houses need to have a good grasp of public opinion and what most voters really want. The effects of samarium on protein, RNA and DNA in rat liver in vivo. 1.

Samarium has been shown to be hepatotoxic in vitro, and it has been suggested that it may be nephrotoxic in vivo. To examine this in more detail, the effect of samarium on liver function and liver composition was studied in the rat. 2. Two experiments have been conducted with adult male rats. The first experiment was conducted to determine the effect of samarium on plasma parameters in rats treated for 7 days. The second experiment was conducted to examine the effect of samarium on liver composition in rats given a single dose of samarium chloride (0.1 mmol/kg, i.v.). Plasma liver enzymes were determined and histological examination of liver sections was carried out. 3. Single doses of samarium chloride (0.1 mmol/kg, i.v.) produced no significant effect on any of the plasma variables measured in either experiment. 4. Samarium produced no effect on the protein content of liver homogenates from either experiment, but there was a significant decline in the RNA/DNA ratio in rats given a single dose of samarium (0.1 mmol/kg, i.v.), suggesting a decrease in cell number. Histologically, the structure of the hepatic reticulum cells appeared unchanged following treatment. 5. From these experiments it appears that samarium is not nephrotoxic in the rat, and it does not seem to be hepatotoxic at a daily dose of up to 0.2 mmol/kg.

Sunday, February 19, 2010 It has been a crazy time over here... For the last couple weeks I have been running on little sleep and enjoying a healthy breakfast and lunch everyday.. Some days just aren't for eating heavy meals I guess.. I am also working out a little extra everyday as well... I am loving it and have gained some size in the last month.. I am excited to hopefully continue to grow. I have got to stay true to my promise though and not gain any more.. It is going to be hard but the more I work out and eat a healthy diet the more I have noticed I am losing weight.. I feel good and I feel stronger everyday. Monday, February 13, 2010 I have been hitting the gym more than usual lately and I am really happy that I have been doing that.. I like working out first thing in the morning even if it is just running and I have been up early everyday. It
