many of our noise reduction filters are based on the same core technology as our video denoise filters. however, they do so differently, and you will notice that the audio denoise plugins have filters that are not in the video denoise plugins. as i mentioned, we have a lot of noise reduction filters. this is because we are committed to this technology, and we believe that many people will be able to use them successfully. the best and simplest way to understand noise removal is to understand the different types of noise, then to understand what a noise removal plug-in can do to help you deal with them. ultimately, noise removal is really about trying to reconstruct the original sound wave before it left the studio or performance space. levelmatic helps you deliver the best possible audio mix for your video by automatically bringing all of your audio clips to the same level. you can use levels such as -24db, -12db, 0db, +12db or +24db to make sure that every audio clip is at the right level. you can use it with your editor of choice, or you can also apply levels to any audio clip using audio clips browser in the crumplepop videodenoise. with levelmatic, youre guaranteed to have the best possible audio mix. crumplepop has also developed an audio enhancement plugin that brightens and sharpens audio and in the crumplepop audiosharpener plugin, you can adjust the volume, balance, compression and limiting to help create the best sounding audio file. you can also choose whether to compress an audio file as well, and if you select mp3 for example, you can also use the auto-tagging feature to automatically create an appropriate tag for your audio file. you can also select other mp3 presets (e.g. 128kbps). 5ec8ef588b
